

Cliff Elliott

Cliff Elliott has been actively engaged in the sale, development, management, and appraisal of real estate in the Meriwether County and surrounding areas for over twenty years. After graduating from Wake Forest University in 1989 he went to for Harry Barnes Realty. In 1998 his started his own company, Elliott Realty & Appraisal, in Manchester, Georgia. His experience includes houses with acreage, land, farms, and small commercial properties. His civic and community involvement includes the Meriwether County Rotary Club, Flint River Academy, and the Woodbury Baptist Church.

His love of the Flint River is a family tradition. His mother and father took him on many canoe trips from Woodbury to Dripping Rocks through The Cove and down to Sprewell Bluff. His father, the late Tyron Elliott, was part of a group that successfully lobbied to prevent the damming of the Flint River in the 1970's and was also a charter board member of the Flint Riverkeeper. Cliff lives on a family farm in the Imlac area of Meriwether County.
